

More Light.

Our local readers are aware that the Dominion of Canada has for some time been greatly agitated over that portion of the Treaty of Washington which, to use the language of the Times, "sacrifices small communities to larger ones and barters away the possessions of the Maritime Provinces." When it became known that such a disposition of the Canadian fisheries was contemplated by the Treaty public opinion was strongly and very generally pronounced in opposition, and it soon became evident that, with the single exception of Newfoundland, the proposition would find little favor in British North America. Nor were the "Grits" of Ontario slow to avail themselves of what appeared to be another lever by which they might hope to "hoist" the present Government. The circumstance of Sir John A. Macdonald being one of the Commissioners led to the conclusion that he was a consenting party to the proposed disposition of the Canadian fisheries, and it was further inferred that the whole Cabinet was committed to the same policy. Had these surmises proved to be correct there would, indeed, have been reason for doubting the ability of the Cabinet to weather the storm of popular indignation. But, happily, such was by no means the case. It gradually transpired that neither the Premier nor his colleagues in the Dominion Cabinet were in any way committed to the obnoxious portion of the Treaty of Washington. More recent information sheds additional light upon the real position of the Dominion Cabinet relative to this question. It now appears that as soon as the provisions of the Treaty were made known the Dominion Cabinet sent a protest by cable to the Imperial Government. Sir John A. Macdonald, in his capacity of British Commissioner also sent his protest to the same quarter. Nor were these protests without practical effect. Instructions were forthwith issued from Downing-street directing the Commissioners to sign the Treaty, subject to the approval of the Canadian Parliament, in so far as that portion of it relating to Canadian questions was concerned. With this ample provision, it would have been little short of treason for Sir John to have withheld his assent to the Treaty; and it will thus be seen that he can well hurl back the term "traitor" which the "Grit" organs of Ontario have not hesitated to apply to him. As the matter appears to stand now, the Parliament of Canada will be asked to say whether or not that part of the Treaty shall come in force; but whatever the decision of Parliament may be, or whatever side Sir John and his colleagues may be found voting upon, the question will not be a Government one in that sense which would make the Cabinet in the slightest degree responsible. The Ministers will, in short, be equally free with any other members of the House to vote as their own judgment or the views of their constituents would dictate. It is not by any means probable that the fishery bill may be presented to Parliament so coated over with Imperial sugar as to enable Canada to swallow it without making a wry face; but it appears to be quite certain that, whatever may be the fate of that part of the Treaty the Canadian Government can in no way suffer from it. Indeed, as the truth becomes known it appears probable that the first flash of indignation will give place to a smile of approbation—that both Sir John and his colleagues will gain in popularity by that which their enemies hoped to turn into the instrument of their political destruction. We need hardly say that we heartily rejoice at such a prospect. We should regard the overthrow of the present Cabinet as a national calamity. Especially would we regard it as a calamity in so far as British Columbia is concerned. Taking the largest view of the whole subject, we are glad that the matter has been so arranged as that great international questions have been placed in course of final and amicable settlement, while at the same time those questions more directly affecting Canada are to be left in a better position than the Joint High Commission found them—that is to say, both Great Britain and the United States have formally acknowledged the right of Canada to control her own marine possessions. When the United States Commissioners signed the Treaty they formally acknowledged the sovereignty of Canada over her fishing-grounds bounded by the three mile limit—the right of Canada to throw these grounds open or keep them shut, as pleased her, thus settling all those disputes and pretensions put forward by certain hostile American statesmen. When the Senate of the United States ratified the acts of these Commissioners they finally and irrevocably committed the nation to that acknowledgment. Thus Canada has gained much by the Treaty, no matter what may be the ultimate settlement of the question. By one masterly stroke of diplomacy, the question has happily been freed from all elements of dispute; and in any future negotiations between Canada and the United States, it will be a simple matter of bargain. We are, at the same time, proud of the manner in which the Canadian Premier has been enabled to exercise the important functions with which he was invested by his Sovereign. Sir John appears to have won golden opinions even from the Great Republic. As one of its own leading journals has beautifully expressed it, he managed to pluck the flower safely from the nettle danger. Canada may well feel proud of her Prime Minister.

Great Commercial Changes.

The advertising columns of the London Times are charts showing the course of the magnificent commerce of that kingdom of merchants. A few years since ships were up for all parts of the East Indies, China and Australia; and their fast sailing qualities were subjects of special note in the advertisements. Since the completion of the Suez Canal last year there has been a great change. Now the columns of the great Thunderer teem with advertisements of swift Clyde built iron steamers via the Suez Canal. Sailing vessels are the exceptions; steamers the rule. English merchants, slow in other things, are quick to note and bold to seize upon every new channel for trade. Long before Americans generally realised the immense traffic that must come to us from the other side of the Pacific, on the completion of our transcontinental lines of railway, they knew the dangers threatening British interests and prepared to outflank them. They did not wait for the completion of the Suez Canal to prove its success, but, in anticipation of the event, set the great ship yards of England at work, constructing myriads of fleet steamers adapted to the new route. In the magnificent results of their enterprise their prescience finds ample justification.

The Fourth of July.

THE SCOTTISH GATHERING.

Yesterday morning dawned sombre and gray, while a wailing wind swept the dust into the eyes and mouths of Victorians or rudely tossed the buxom thrown to the breeze in honor of the birth of American Independence. As many British as American ensigns kissed the breeze; business was suspended, and early in the afternoon groups of pleasure-seekers thronged the Caledonian Grounds and engaged in the various amusements prepared for the Scottish Gathering. The grove was adorned with the flags of all nations. A grand stand had been erected, from which the various games were observed by interested hundreds. The dancing platform was crowded with the gay and charming of both sexes, who tripped over the smooth and glassy surface until the midnight hour had sounded. At 7 o'clock Mr John Robson, Orator of the Day, delivered a short address, which was attentively listened to. The lottery for the gold ring set with rubies and emeralds, resulted in the prize being drawn by No 187. The "other article" proved to be an immense erisoline, and was awarded to No 268. Towards evening the wind had somewhat subsided, and when the midsummer moon arose and lent its soft, mellow light to the scene the effect was bewitchingly charming.

The arrangements were entirely successful and much praise is due the following committee for the creditable manner in which they fulfilled their duties:—J. Orr, A. Ruth, R. Russell, J. A. Gray, J. Ross, A. Young, B. Sample, J. Stewart, Esqrs. The Judges were Lieut E. C. Royce, R. N. Dr. Trimble, James A. Graham and J. Russell, Esqrs. Starter—H. Nathan, Esq. M. L. C.

Among the most noticeable figures upon the ground was Mr Donald McKay, who was clad in the full Royal Stuart tartan, and presented a fine and imposing appearance.

The games were conducted with the utmost fairness and liberality and were the source of much amusement. The list of successful competitors came in too late for this issue. A very efficient band was in attendance and discoursed delightful music. Probably 1000 persons visited the grounds and took part in the entertainment. The refreshments were provided by Mr James Orr, who fully sustained his well-earned reputation. Taken all in all, the Caledonian Gathering, 1871, was the most successful that has yet been held.

KOREA.—Korea is almost an independent kingdom, and is governed by a King who pays tribute to the Uncle of the Moon, the Emperor of China. Its inhabitants are said to be far superior to the Chinese in mental and physical resources. The government consists of a King, whose ministry is divided into five departments, which form the center of all civil and military authority. His Majesty's power is held sacred and inviolable from the union in his own person of the hierarchal and secular sovereignty. He divides his government into circles or Provinces, each under the rule of special Governors, all appointed by the King, to whom they are responsible. The revenues of the the Korean monarch are immense and are derived mainly from the letting out of land and a tithe of produce. As in China, religion is a secondary consideration. The prevailing belief is in Buddhism, which was introduced about the year 372, but there appears to be another religion—evidently the original faith of the people—and the doctrines of Confucius are held in high esteem. The genuine Korean language is scarcely Roman, as it has become hopelessly corrupted by the introduction of numerous Chinese words, the higher classes using the Chinese language in all cases. About the year 1120 Korea was conquered by the Japanese, who were unable to retain it and it fell under the sway of China, and we have already intimated that the people engaged largely in piracy and numbers of them are yearly caught while at work in their pirate junk. Their treatment of all foreigners has fallen into their hands is most brutal, and it was because of their inhumanity that the expedition under the command of Admiral Rodgers was sent to Eastern waters.

GOLDMINING ON SOMBRERO RIVER.—Mr J. Wilcox, jr, returned on Monday from Sombrero River, bringing with him very fine specimens of scale gold, which were obtained from the banks of that stream. The water has been very high, but the boys have built a wiggam and turned the stream so as to get at the gravel in the bed. Lumber for sluices will be taken down from Sooke. A company above Wilcox's have flumed the river, and another company below have built a tailrace and wiggam and are sawing out lumber for sluices and flumes. There are eleven men on the Sombrero, and the prospects obtained are so very good that all feel confident of success.

PRESIDENT GRANT will not start for the Pacific Coast until the 15th August.

Return of the Otter.

LATER FROM SKEENA—THE OMINECA MINES.

The H B Co's steamer Otter arrived last evening from the North, having visited Fort Wrangel, Queen Charlotte Island, Fort Simpson, Meliklatlah, Skeena, Port Essington, Bella Bella, Fort Rupert, Alert Bay, Comox and Nanaimo. The U S S Sarnac left Fort Simpson for the North on the morning of June 28th.

The miners on the Stikine river were doing well and making good wages.

At Omineca all mining operations were suspended on account of the high water, and provisions were very scarce and dear. A few men were leaving, not having the means to remain in the country till the mining season commenced. Twelve of them came by the Otter, some of whom were landed at Comox and Nanaimo. More than a hundred men were at Babine Lake waiting for the river to fall sufficiently for them to go into the mines.

At Port Essington the Otter anchored off the proposed new town site, where Captain Lewis landed to satisfy himself as to the natural advantages of the place, and reports as follows:—"Plenty of level land covered with timber suitable for building—good anchorage well sheltered, and deep water to within a few rods of the shore. It is fifteen miles further up the Skeena than the old anchorage at Woodcock's, and not so far from Victoria." Messrs Cunningham & Hankin have already a quantity of lumber on the ground and will immediately commence putting up a large store, and it is the intention of Mr Cunningham, who has come down for the purpose of purchasing a large stock of goods, to have them all shipped to the new town site.

W. Woodcock has commenced work on the trail from the Forks and is making good progress.

Mr Thomas Hankin was married to Miss M. McQuay on Thursday, 29th ult, at Fort Rupert.

Three men had returned from Omineca to the mouth:

Reid, the Expressman, was at the Forks with an express, but did not get down in the Otter. The Expressman will arrive by the steamer Emily Harris in a few days.

Following came passengers on the Otter: Mr O. Brown, Fort Wrangel; Messrs Bacon and Cunningham, Skeena; Mr and Mrs Nelson, Alert Bay, and 13 others.

ADDITIONAL.

Two men are reported to have been drowned in the Omineca.

A new creek was struck by Kelly, which prospected $10 to the pan.

Stevens & Page have the best claim on the creek. Ten men took out $100 a day apiece for ten days.

The Omineca Mines.

COMMISSIONER O'REILLY'S REPORT.

GERMAN CREEK, June 6, 1871.

To the Hon Colonial Secretary,

SIR:— I left for the Omineca gold fields on the 1st May, and after detentions on the way of eleven days, I arrived at German Creek via the Giscome Portage and McLeod's Lake on the 2d June.

From Giscome Portage to the confluence of the Paisnup with the Peace River I experienced no difficulty in traveling. From this point following up the Omineca, the water had risen so much that it was with the utmost exertion we succeeded in making the last seventy miles in nine days.

Since my arrival I have three times visited the diggings and find that the miners have, without an exception, formed a most favorable impression of the creek. Good prospects have been obtained on the low bench for a distance of about eight miles on either side of the water course, which will afford employment to about six or seven hundred men. A good deal of excitement was occasioned about a week since by a new strike having been made some nine miles further up the creek by a company of five men, who washed up 390 oz after fifteen days' work, but they have since been obliged to discontinue their labors owing to the high stage of water. Mining operations are now almost at a standstill and it is not likely they can be recommenced with advantage much before the 1st July.

There are at least five hundred men congregated here at present and others continue to arrive daily. The supply of provisions is very small and the few articles that are offered for sale are being retailed at exorbitantly high rates. I will enclose for His Excellency's information a list of the current prices. A few men have already left the mines, unable to procure the necessities of life, and unless supplies are soon received many will be compelled to follow their example.

I have reserved for a town site a small bench on the west bank of the creek about three miles from its mouth. A dozen well built houses have already been put up and as many more are in course of construction. The town has been named Omineca after the river of which this creek is a tributary.

It will be necessary to build or rent an office before very long, but I have deferred doing either until I have had a better opportunity of forming an opinion as to the stability of the mines.

The revenue collected from the 1st June to this date amounts to $1180 50.

I have the honor to be, sir, Your obedient servant,

P. O'REILLY,
Gold Commissioner.

The Fishery Question.

Sir John A. Macdonald was to hold a meeting at Toronto about the 20th June and address the people on the fishery provision of the Treaty of Washington, after which he would proceed to New Brunswick and address a meeting there upon the same subject.

The Steamship City of Melbourne of the Australian and New Zealand line sailed from San Francisco on the 20th inst.

ECCEASTICAL UNION.—The Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, in connection with the Established Kirk of Scotland, was in session at Toronto when the last mail left. Amongst the most interesting subjects engaging the attention of the Synod was that of a union of all the Presbyterian Churches throughout the Dominion. A Joint Committee, appointed last year for the purpose reported a basis of union under the designation of "The Presbyterian Church of British North America." The following is the basis of union, in so far as matters of faith and doctrine are concerned:—1 That the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testament, being the infallible word of God, are the supreme standard of Faith and manners. 2 That the Westminster Confession of Faith shall be the subordinate standard of this Church, it being understood (1) That full liberty of opinion in regard to the power and duty of the Civil Magistrate in matters of religion, as set forth in said Confession, be allowed, and (2) That the use of the shorter catechism be enjoined as an authoritative exposition of doctrine for the instruction of the people.

THE P S STEAMERS.—The arrival of the Isabel places us in possession of reliable information respecting the recent change in the ownership of the Puget Sound steamers. The Starr Bros have purchased the Eliz Anderson and the wharf owned by Finch & Company at Olympia, and the steamer Olympia is withdrawn from the Puget Sound trade and will run on the southern coast of California, between San Francisco and San Diego. The Starr Bros having thus the control of the Puget Sound traffic will undoubtedly secure the Canadian mail subsidy in addition to the United States mail contract, and have wisely decided to fix the fare to Olympia at $5, with a graduating scale for intermediate ports.

PUGET SOUND ITEMS.—The Intelligence says that the net proceeds of the late Episcopal concert and fair at Seattle were $152. A percentage fund will be started.... Up to Saturday last only 132 voters had registered their names at the Recorder's office. Last year there were only 164 votes polled at the Municipal election, when there should have been over 400, and we presume that there will not be many more than that this year.... A new vessel was launched at Seattle yesterday.... The schooner Clara Light has arrived at Olympia.... A complimentary performance in aid of the family of the late Mr Beatty will be given at Olympia.... The Olympia Tribune styles Governor Musgrave Sir John Musgrave.

THE ISABEL arrived yesterday morning from Fort Townsend after a tempestuous passage in crossing the Straits. She brought the California's passengers and freight—the latter steamer having gone to Bellingham Bay to load stone for Portland, Oregon. Among the passengers who arrived yesterday were Mr and Mrs Holmes, J S Drummond, Mrs Fried and sister, Mr and Mrs Bunster, Mrs Hoyt and two Misses Hoyt. Mr J Bosworth. The passengers describe the trip across as exceedingly uncomfortable, the decks being frequently washed by the high seas.

ARRIVAL.—The bark Zephyr, Capt Trank, consigned to C T Millard, with a freight of 150 tons of merchandise, arrived yesterday afternoon. The Zephyr sailed from San Francisco on the 12th ult, experienced light adverse winds to the Cape of which she arrived a week ago; was detained off the Cape by calms until yesterday morning, when she had a quick run. After discharging the bark will proceed to Newcastle Island for a load of stone for San Francisco.

COAL.—Capt Roberts of San Francisco, who represents the Webb-Holladay line of New Zealand and Australian steamships, is in town for the purpose of making a contract with the Vancouver Coal Company for the supply of the steamships with several thousand tons of coal to be laid at Honolulu, S. I.

THE TWENTIETH.—In accordance with a suggestion made through these columns a few days ago, a meeting of gentlemen to form a committee whose duty it shall be to make arrangements for the proper celebration of our Dominion Day at the Capital, will be held to-day.

THE SURVEYORS.—A San Francisco dispatch of July 1st says:—J. A. Miboud leaves here for Victoria on the steamer Prince Alfred on Monday, to commence exploration of the route from British Columbia to Canada, for the projected British Colonial Railway.

A DARLING.—Mrs Lydia Sherman has been arrested at New Brunswick, N. J., by officers from Connecticut, on a charge of having poisoned at different times three husbands and two step-children. The proof is said to be strong.

PASSED UP.—The barkentine Emma Augusta, from San Francisco for the Hastings Mills, to load for Shanghai, took a pilot and passed up on Monday night.

NO INQUEST.—The Coroner decided to hold no inquest upon the body of George Richardson—the facts of the case being so plain.

IN THE MOUNTAIN.—The tunnel at the Parmer Lead has been run fifty feet through the rock and the workmen expect to strike the lead in a few days.

The Portland steamers will no longer visit this port; but will connect with the Puget Sound steamers for Victoria at Port Townsend.

The steamer Olympia, on her way to San Francisco, will arrive here to-morrow and will sail the day following for the Bay City.

The North Pacific will arrive here on Thursday afternoon and will thereafter continue her semi-weekly trips as before.

MAIL.—A small American and Canadian mail was brought by the Isabel.

THE SKATING RINK will be opened to-day. A full supply of the skates arrived yesterday and may be had at the rink.

CHICKEN.—The match between the Equi-malt-Fleet and Victoria Elevens will come off to-morrow at Beacon Hill.

THE OTTER met the Emily Harris, bound for Skeena, north of Millbank Sound on Saturday last.

DOWN.—The wires yesterday.

Napoleon at Chiselhurst.

A correspondent of the New York Herald claims to know all about how Napoleon and his family live at Chiselhurst. He says:— "About the Empress very little can be said at the present moment except that she is not quite well, having caught a severe cold and that she remains in her apartments invisible to visitors, attended solely by Madame Lermine, the only lady in waiting she retains. Besides this temporary illness, however, the Empress seems also to have completely changed in her disposition of mind. She is very nervous and constantly discontented with everything that happens around her, so that her temper at the present begins to be the subject of general complaint at Chiselhurst, and the Emperor himself appears to suffer from it more than any one else. Even the little Prince does not seem to see his mother as much as previously. He spends the greater portion of the day with the Emperor. When they rise in the morning they both go for a walk until the messenger arrives from London, when the Emperor goes to open his correspondence. After this there comes billiard play, which Napoleon himself teaches the Prince, as he also does fencing and riding. Then comes breakfast and the daily prayer of the whole house. Then the young Prince takes his music lesson, in which he seems daily to improve, and in which his father greatly encourages him, notwithstanding his own well known indifference to music.

When the weather is somewhat tolerable which has been very seldom this year in London, both father and son spend a great deal of time in walking round their park, which is full of sheep, and presents the most pleasant walking ground. These sheep are the only living beings to be met with in the park, it being so guarded as not to allow any one to interfere with the solitude of their fallen majesties. Mr. Pictet (not the Prefect of Geneva, but his cousin, the Secretary) and two or three gentlemen of the household watch every one that enters the residence and having the most strict orders not to allow any one to approach the Emperor. Full baskets of letters, containing applications for help or soliciting interviews are torn up or burned by these gentlemen without being submitted to the Emperor. The worst of the Emperor's temper is the couple is entrusted to a very few persons. The whole body of courtiers consist of far as I know of M. Comte chief of the Emperor's Cabinet; M. Pictet the Emperor's private Secretary; Colonel Lepic, the Emperor's aide-de-camp; Count D'Alville; M. Duperré (he captain in the navy) aide-de-camp to the Prince Imperial; M. Combeau, the Emperor's surgeon, and his son by his first marriage—a young naval officer—the Emperor's orderly.

The household is still more modest. The gate-keeper of Camden House is still the English one, and the whole change in his life is that he has the Emperor and Empress's portraits on the walls of his lodge—as indeed they are to be found in all corners of Chiselhurst, hawked by lads all over the place. The attendants or servants of the staff of Camden House itself consist of the old maid de chambre of the Emperor, of one lady's maid of the Empress, of one footman, taken from the Tailories, of one English one, and of one female cook in the kitchen and a couple of kitchen maids. The Emperor dines quite en famille with the Empress and Prince, and none of the courtiers are present. The dinner or the evening, except occasionally. Both he and the Empress were always very superstitious, and now consulting their fortunes in the cards seems to be the chief occupation in the evening. How little the means of recreation are can be seen from the fact that in front of Camden House there is a small spot under some trees where a table and a few iron chairs are placed, and the whole court is looking out for a fine day upon which it has been promised that coffee would be served after dinner for the whole court. And this day is still expected and does not come on account of the unbearable weather.

Baroness Burdett-Countess.

The recent raising of this distinguished lady to the peerage will give an additional interest to the following particulars respecting her:— Miss Countess is the youngest of four daughters of the well-known Sir Francis Burdett, who married Sophia, the daughter of Thomas Coutts, the famous banker, and sister of the Marchioness of Bute and Countess of Guildford. Mr Coutts left all his fortune—some $15,000,000—to his widow, who had been at one time Miss Harriet Mellon, the actress. She married the Duke of St Albans in 1827. Dying in 1837 the fortune of her husband reverted to his family by her will. She made Miss Anna Georgina Burdett, the daughter of Sir Francis Burdett, her sole heiress, with the condition that she should assume the name of her grandfather. Miss Burdett Countess was then 23 years of age, the youngest daughter of an ancient family, who were baronets since 1618—just six years after the first patent was granted by the monarch, planning the Plantation of Ulster, and before a hundred had received this dignity of hereditary knighthood. Her father, if not one of the most distinguished, was certainly one of the best known and most radical of the English politicians. His popularity was so great that Napoleon intended to make him President of the Republic which he proposed to establish in England after the capture of London by the Imperial troops. Miss Countess never married, notwithstanding that her family position and wealth could have secured for her a magnificent settlement. Inheriting none of the radical predilections of her father, she devoted her fortune to fostering the Establishment and to other works of religion and charity—endowing churches, supporting foreign missionary establishments, improving schools, and withdrawing Magdalens from their sin.

She erected the church, parsonage and three schools of St Stephen's, Westminster, and the church at Carlisle. She endowed the three colonial hospitals of Adelaide, Cape Town and British Columbia. She also devoted a large sum to a mission to the aborigines of South Australia. She contributed in a princely manner to the fund for Sir Henry James's survey of Jerusalem. She built a Magdalen asylum at Shepherd's Bush. Believing that prevention was better than cure she endeavored to save a large class of women by improving the character of the education imparted at schools. She also took means to provide the women of Spitalfields with sewing and other work. On the site of the Nova Scotia Gardens she erected the well known model dwellings called Columbia square. Close to it was laid out a fine market, which is one of the architectural wonders of London. She has done much to assist immigration from all parts of the United Kingdom. In addition to these beautiful outlays she has done much to aid deserving artists and in every branch of art she is a liberal and judicious patroness. Her peerage is to all intents and purposes a life peerage, and as her brother, Sir Robert Burdett, is childless, it is not likely that her patent provides for its reversion, to him or his heirs.

Go to David Green's if you want a coat Made of wool, from the finest sheep or Cashmere goat. Or the best fitting pants, or the nicest vest—There's where you will always get the very best. He has all kinds of goods that gentlemen need, Cloth, silk, cashmere, velvet linen and tweed—If you'll all get a suit and plank down the cash he'll sell to you cheap if it breaks him to smash! ap29
